MR. BLAIR INDIGNANT.

THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE SENATOR DENOUNC-ING THE TRIBUNE.

SINGIONG IT OUT FOR ATTACK FOR FAILURE TO GIVE MORE SPACE TO HIS TWO WEEKS'

SPEECH ON THE EDUCATION BILL.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.

Washington, March 8 .- Senator Blair has returned to the charge that the newspaper press of the country, under the influence of certain "fell and infernal agencies," has conspiired, and still conspires, to keep from the attention of the public the "terrible facts" about the condition of education in the South which he has been so assiduously collecting, and to fortnight on the floor of the Senate. His former in peachment of the press was general in character; this me he makes more specific complaints, and the order of his indignation, strangely enough, is laid upon the shoulders of The Tribune. Mr. Blair's vagaries of speech are seldom to be taken seriously; and perhaps the statement made in this correspondence few weeks ago about the absolute inadaptability for newspaper use of the New-Hampshire Senator's excessively long and scattering introductory address was a sufficient answer to any of the friends of the lilair bill who may been inclined to listen with degree of sympathy to its chief promoter's tale of inappreciation and neglect.

There are some passages, however, in this new outburst of scorn and reproof which are too characteristic of the New-Hampshire statesman's peculiar turn of mind to be lost to the public in the musty pages of "The Congressional Record." The Senator, after calling attention to flie fact that the press, throughout debate on the Education bill, has manifested its full share of subserviency to "the Jesuitical power, puts in evidence a letter from "a member of the New York Press Club." to show that in New-York City. after all these years of agitation, a newspaper man named Gideon J. Tucker, "who writes for two or three party papers," does not even know what the lican Club of New-York City, it seems, was in an equally benighted condition-"Hottentots." the Senator says-on this subject, until he himself went on to the metropolis and talked to the members personally. Says Mr. Blair in "The Record":

ally. Says Mr. Blair in "The Record":

Think of this. A man engaged upon the press in the city of New-York utterly unable, after all these years, to know what this bill is now; and he wents information from me; and The New-York Tribune says it does not publish any of this matter, because it is old matter. The New-York Tribune never published a column, and has not for years, of all these terrible facts which have been arrayed here in the senate, and
Th New-York Tribune does not dare to do it to-day.
For days I have produced in this debate matter wholly new, and gathered within the last year, and wholly since the debate of 1888.

For days I have produced in this debate matter who his new, and gathered within the last year, and wholly since the debate of 1888.

The New-York Tribune refused, as I understand, to publish resolutions passed by the New-York Republican Club, only a little while ago, favoring this bill. I was invited there to make an address before that cillb, and went there, and talked to them two hours, as I talked to the Senate two weeks. I went there by invitation. I spoke upon this bill, and they did not know any more about it before that time than so many Hottentots—all of them, nearly, readers of The New-York Tribune; and when I got through, having explained it to them, they referred it to their committee on Legislation, considered it carefully, approved it unanimously and tried to get the resolutions published, but could not; and so they wrote to me, interly surprised. I was not surprised. I know who own those papers, and I know they are under the clutch of Jesultism, and are false to their trust, a good many of them, with two or three exceptions—most noble exceptions.

Once there was a conscience in The New-York Tribune, but the man died who had the conscience. Now these great papers are simply monopolies of the uttermost and direct and worst kind, monopolies that collect alleged intelligence, and disseminate just what the interest of the papers and of individuals and of corporations may see fit to give to the public at large; and the country press, and the smaller papers, from these perverted and poisoned sources carry to the people just what they can get; and so the American people in the North, and this Republican party in many sections of the North, mishriormed and lied to about this bill, have been induced to turn back in some places up on the natural instincts and impulses of Republicans, and to expose it. But you give them the facts, as in God's name they will get them sometime; and this trueulent and mercenary press will tell a different story, or will disappear.

This, of course, is amusing as burlesque, and t ant "Hottenfots" of the Republican Club that his allusion to that progressive political body is entirely Pickwickian. It would be good nature to assume that the references to The Tribune are Pickwickian also. Mr. Blair himself, before he sat down, withdrew the charge that The Tribune had refused to notice the res lations favoring his bill, passed by the Republican Club; and he will, no doubt, when he recovers his equanimity, admit that his other grounds of complaint equally mistaken and empty.

The Tribune has not opposed his bill, and has always

THE MONTANA SENATORSHIPS CONTEST.

THE SENATE COMMITTEE DECIDES IN FAVOR OF THE REPUBLICAN CONTESTANTS.

Washington, March 8 .- The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, after a long session to-day, inally reached a decision in the case of the contested Montana Senatorships, and by a party vote decided to mmend to the Senate that Powers and Sanders. the Republican Schators, be seated. Senator Turple did not agree with either the majority or minority, but was of opinion that no election of

was the legal House, as its memoers heat of creates of election from the election officers, and was recognized as the legal House by the State senate.

The report of the committee will not be made for several days, as it will be a long document, discussing both the law and the facts in the case. Mr. Gray, it is expected, will prepare the report of the mhority. The presentation of the reports will be the simulator and the subject.

MAKING PROGRESS ON THE WORLD'S FAIR BILL. Washington, March 8 .- The House Sub-Committee on the World's Fair made encouraging progress at to-day's meeting toward the completion of its bill. The Chicago visiting delegation were present; and the sub-committee turned the bill over to them, with instructions to go over it carefully, line by line, and suggest such changes as in their opinion were necessary to make the measure meet the needs of necessary to make the measure meet the needs of Chicago. In this way about seven sections of the bill were gone over, and the changes made are said to be unimportant. When the committee met a number of telegrams were received from prominent Chicago people, assuring the committee of the financial standing of the persons who have signed the subscription list. Mr. Gage said that in his judgment the signers represented about $40,000,000 worth of property.

The Tribune has not opposed his bill, and has always tried to give the discussions that have taken place over the measure the attention they really deserved. It did not devote much space to Mr. Blair's last prolonged effort, mainly because the Senator unloaded upon the few hearers he had a vast mass of undigested, chaoute information—scraps of reports, letters, telegrams, petitions, etc., which were at only to be used as data for a speech, and which could have been summed up and stated intelligibly and with vastly greater effect in a single afternoon.

To tell the plain truth, the bill has been balked to the point of death by its chief advocate, and it has been only a friendly act on the part of The Tribune, which has never opposed the measure, to protect it, as far as seemed reasonable, from the over ze dous indiscretions of the New-Hampshire Senator. It cannot protect him against himself, however, if he will persist in making against himself, however, if he will persist in making against himself, however, if he will persist in making against himself, however, if he will persist in making against himself, however, if he will persist in making against himself, however, if he will persist in making against himself, however, if he will persist in making against himself, however, if he will persist in making against himself, however, if he will persist in making against himself however, if he will persist in making against himself however, if he will persist in making against himself however, if he will persist in making against himself however, if he will persist in making and the personal charrin at a supposed libration of the personal to the interpolation by Mr. Call of certain remarks. which provides for taxing each unmarried man in the Territory over thirty-five years old $2.50 a year. Martin Hopkins, who is in the city, is an ardent supporter of this bill, which he believes will be adopted. Senators had been accomplished, and that the case should be remitted to the State of Montana for action. He may make an independent report to that effect.

The ground upon which the majority of the committee will take its stand as a basis for its recommendation it that the Repablican House of Montana was the legal House, as its members held the certificates of election officers, and was the legal House, as its members held the certificates of election officers, and was start for Wyoming this month, I would guarantee that 99 per cent of the number would not be single a year. Our school trustees want women for teachers, our young chaps want pretty, entertaining girls to take to parties, our backelors want sensible middle aged women for life partners. Lots of women from the East have gone to Wyoming within the last few years, yet the demand is far greater than the supply. Hundreds of young girls, working like slaves for a mere pittance in Chicago, could go to Wyoming, get a school there, and decide on a husband. The schoolroom is there, and decide on a husband. The schoolroom is the greatest avenue to matrimony in the West. You would be surprised to know that two-thirds of the words would be surprised to know that two-thirds of the marms. You would be surprised to know that two-thirds of the wives of Wyoming's wealthy men were once school marms. If this keeps on, we won't have any schools. When I was here a year ago, I advised a young teacher to go to Wyoming. She got a school fifty miles north of Cheycane, and began work in September. In pecomber she matried a wealthy cattle owner. Upon being told that a cannon was about to be cast therein, he said: That is an impossibility; if you attempt it an explosion will f.How." He was laughed at, and the workmen processed with their labor. But no sooner was the work of casting begun than the mould exploded with terrific violence and several men were killed.

The catastrophe created a prodigious sir, of course, Recalling the works of warning uttered by the strauger, the identity of the young man was sought and discovered; he had made a study of gun manufacturing, and to those interrogating him he evinced a thorough knowledge of the art. The result of the matter was that this young man was employed by the Government and subsequently rose to the superintendency of the works, which were eventually moved to Woolwich.

BEFORE THE REICHSTAG.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT MEASURES PRE-PARED BY THE COUNCIL OF STATE.

AIMS OF THE CLERICAL PARTY-ANTI-AN-

ARCHIST BILL-THE EMPEROR'S REMARK-

ABLE DECLARATION OF ABSOLUTISM. Berlin, March 8.-The Government has decided to open the business of the Reichstag with the projects proposed by the Council of State, the foremost of which are bills regulating work on Sunday and restricting the complex measures, relating to the hours of the male adults' and miners' workday will be reserved until the autumn session. Simultaneously with the presentation of social measures increased army and colonial credits will be demanded. There will also be presented a bill aiming to control strikes, and an anti-Anarchist measire designed to replace the anti-Socialist law.

It is impossible to foresee how the heterogeneous lements of the Reichstag will group themselves upon the Government's proposals. The official expectation is that the projects of the Council of State will be nietly discussed and accepted, but that the army redits and the anti-Anarchist law will test the attlide of the Government toward the majority. reisinnige organs regard the credits as put forward they predict that if the Centrists throw their vote against the Government a dissolution will be immeliately pronounced, Prince Bismarck going to the counry on the broad, simple platform of the maintenance of the efficiency of the army.

The "Germania" predicts the formation of a majority which will assist the Government in social reforms on a Christian basis, the maintenance of protectionist duties, the defence of the rights of the monarchy, and the strengthening of the federal character of the empire. If this were all the Clerical arty desired, a coalition of the Conservatives and entrists would be assured; but behind this sme some programme the Catholic leaders conceal a design to try to coerce the Chancellor into a startling change of foreign policy affecting the relations of Italy and the Vatican. The Centrist leaders are too sagacious to insist upon a change of Prince Eismarck's policy toward Italy as an immediate condition of their sup-port. The first terms asked will be educational conessions. When these shall have been granted, they will concentrate upon an effort to effect a rupture of he existing compact with the Quirinal.

The anti-Anarchist bill is the Emperor's inspirathe anti-Socialist law under a new name. The exact provisions of the measure are unknown; but it is understood that the expulsion clause of the antiocialist law is omitted, and that the bill permits a

The Emperor's speech at Brandenburg Wednesday, continues to excite the greatest public interest. The Emperor's declaration of absolutism, intensified it. Throughout the speech tie Emperor asserted, in the most emphatic language, his personal authority and his responsibility to God. In the most remarkable passage, which will be forever memorable, he said: "I see in the people and the land intrusted to me by God a talent, which, as the Bible says, it is my duty to increase. I mean with all my strength to so trade with my talent that I will be enabled to add another thereto. Those who help me, I shall heartily welcome; those who appeas me, I dash to pieces.

The final phrase evolved the liveliest comment. The semi-official press holds that it is not to be recarded as threatening moral opposition, but merely physical and violent resistance to the law. The Conservative Papers commend it as the promise of a vigorous rule. The Liberals value the speech as placing under a whige light the character of a monarch who deems himself the sole arbiter of the nation's destines, ignoring the fact that the various parties in the Leichebas want to carry out their own ideas and not his and who foolish enough to threaten to dash the people to pieces on the eve of the meeting of a Parliament in which the covernment will face a hospitic majority. Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, of from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present, allke to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent or overbusy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of auffering, encourages his "practice" until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

HIS UNFORTUNATE CLIENT.

From The Nashville American.

A young lawyer was making his maiden effort before a jury in detence of a criminal. The evidence was all in, and the arose to utter the brilliant thoughts that had been surging through his brain. He was primed for a fine display of craterical pyretechnics, but somehow or other he could not get a start. His mind became a blank, and he stood trembling for a moment. Then waving his arms he began: "May it please the court and gentlemen of well-wave."

He waited for the attendant to return and tried to gather his faculties. After taking a spi of water he began again: "May it please the court and gentlemen of the jury. I am happy—no—yes."
